The image displays two rectangular plastic components, likely injection-molded. The component on the left is a light beige or off-white color. It features a central rectangular slot, several small circular indentations or holes on its surface, and a hinged lid at the top. The component on the right is a dark grey or black color. It has a similar rectangular shape but includes four raised cylindrical pillars at its corners and a small latch or protrusion on its side. Both parts are shown against a plain white background.
