SZOMK

The image displays two rectangular plastic components, likely injection-molded. The component on the left is a light beige or off-white color. It features a central rectangular slot, several small circular indentations or holes on its surface, and a hinged lid at the top. The component on the right is a dark grey or black color. It has a similar rectangular shape but includes four prominent raised pillars or posts at its corners, suggesting it might be designed to hold or support another part. Both components are shown against a plain white background.
